

Pass to Portugal

ABOUT ANH

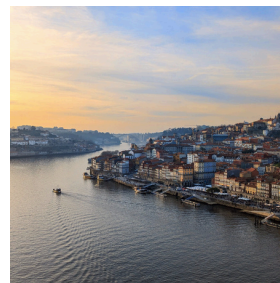

Hi! I'm Anh Evarado — a travel blogger, photographer, and former pharmacist who traded prescriptions for passport stamps. In 2023, my husband and I made the leap and relocated our family from the US to northern Portugal with our two kids, Remy and Lily. I write about Portugal not as a tourist passing through, but as a mom who's actually living here — navigating local life, finding hidden gems, and helping families plan trips they'll never forget. I also shoot professional travel and destination photography, including aerial drone footage.

ABOUT PASS TO PORTUGAL

Pass to Portugal is an English-language family travel blog dedicated to helping international visitors, especially American and UK families, discover Portugal beyond the obvious. We are focused on exploring Portugal through real experiences - from city breaks in Porto to beach escapes in the Algarve. Each story blends practical advice with professional photography and drone footage to inspire families and travelers to experience Portugal confidently and authentically.
